Postgraduate School Supervision Enrichment Winter School

The Future
Reimagined

Supervision Enrichment Winter School

The programme is aimed at current and aspiring supervisors of postgraduate students who could be:

- University academic staff with/without a PhD
- Post-Doctoral Research Fellows
- Any other relevant person with an interest in postgraduate supervision

PURPOSE OF THE PROGRAMME

To provide supervisors with a structured introduction to supervision issues, processes and practices, and to offer exposure to research-informed best practice and emerging trends, in order to facilitate reflection on their own supervision practices and professional growth.

PROGRAMME MODE AND DURATION

The Supervision Enrichment Winter School of the Postgraduate School, University of Johannesburg, is conceived around providing enrichment and extension to regional and international colleagues who wish to participate in a specially designed programme on Postgraduate Research Supervision. The week's programme is facilitated by experienced senior academics who teach on UJ's Postgraduate Diploma in Research Supervision, an accredited blended learning programme for both novice and experienced supervisors.

The Winter School programme includes plenary keynote speakers and interactive Masterclasses on key aspects of postgraduate research supervision. There will be opportunities for networking, discussion, and sharing of resources.

PROGRAMME CONTENT OVERVIEW

- Supervision practices, institutional supervision role players and processes
- Global changes and trends in postgraduate research and supervision
- Diversity; new models for an African perspective
